Abstract. In this exchange, Mark Hampton and Martin Conboy debate the best approaches to researching and writing journalism history. In the first essay, Hampton, taking as his starting point Conboy's 2010 agenda-setting article, "The Paradoxes of Journalism History", argues that journalism history should be more deeply integrated within broader cultural, political, and economic historiographies, and that media history is key to this task.

Journalism history—a debate: Journalism Studies: Vol 15, No 2

Local Journalism. Conclusion. To engage contemporary students in history needs a special talent to enthuse and inspire. Conboy succeeds admirably. What might have been a forbidding chronological slog is thoroughly enlivened by Conboy's thematic approach, shot through with passion and rigour in equal measure.
